WILSON CALLS FOR EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS MAY 19

Tumulty Receives Cabled Instructions For Formal Call---President Will Not Be Home To Address Legislators.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, May 7.—President Wilson today called an extraordinary session of the 66th congress for May 19. Secretary Tumulty received instructions from Paris early today to issue the formal call. The date caused a distinct surprise among congressional circles. It was known that the call would be forthcoming within a few days, but May 26 was the earliest date that was speculated upon.

The calling of the session for May 19 means that the president will not be in Washington to address a joint session on that date. When he left for the second trip to Paris, it was known to be his intention not to call the special session until he could be in Washington. What may have caused him to change his attitude was not revealed. The White House claimed to be without any information on the definite date of the president's return.

It is believed that the president is calling a special session for so early a date yielded to pressure from Secretary Glass, who for sometime has been anxious to have supply measures, that failed of passage in the last congress, got out of the way. It is known that he has been in communication with Paris for sometime, and that he has urged speedy action necessary to putting the finances of the country in shape.

BUILDERS WOULD DEPRESS B'WAY

Kingston Builders Exchange To Use Efforts In Favor Of Lowering Street At W. S. Crossing and Approves Building Campaign.

At a very largely attended meeting of the Kingston Builders' Exchange held at Mechanics' Hall, Henry street, Tuesday evening, it was unanimously voted that the exchange go on record as favoring the depressing of Broadway and that all efforts be made to have the Public Service Commission approve this plan and have the work started at the earliest possible moment and the following committee was appointed to confer with the Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations in this important matters. William McCullough, R. McKittrick, O. Van Aken, D. Griffin, E. Swart.

They also, heartily approved of the proposed campaign for the revival of buildings operations and as shown by figures produced at the meeting building material has only increased about 60 per cent whereas living commodities have advanced from 75 per cent to 165 per cent and wearing apparel has increased from 80 per cent to 350 per cent. Farm utensils have increased from 85 per cent to 400 per cent and as the farmer has to have his implements and the public at large have to have their clothing and wearing apparel and the body has to be fed, then why stop building which has been the least advanced in cost of any of the various things entering into the daily expenditure of money. The following committee has been appointed by the Kingston Builders' Exchange to confer with the Chamber of Commerce: E. Swart, O. Van Aken and D. Griffin.

GRAND JURY INDICTS BUT ONE

That is Found Against Rock for Robbery—Action Begun in Supreme Court Against A. A. Stern and Another for Alleged Malpractise—The Story of the Kicking Horse.

When supreme court reconvened this morning at 10 o'clock, Justice Howard called the day calendar and Nos. 41, 43, 55 and 70 were announced as being ready for trial. A jury was then ordered drawn in No. 41, Jennie Ellsworth against A. A. Stern and another, an action for damages for alleged malpractice. Elijah T. Russell of Poughkeepsie for plaintiff; John W. Eckert of counsel; James Taylor Lewis for defendant; Harry H. Flemming of counsel. Plaintiff, who resides in Highland asks for $5,000 damages, in her complaint she alleges that about May or June last she dislocated the elbow of her left arm, and at the City of Kingston Hospital Dr. A. A. Stern was called to set the same. That he failed to use proper care and skill and that the dislocation had not been properly reduced and the bone not set in proper position, and as a result of lack of skill the arm has become stiffened, causing permanent injury. That by reason of the injuries aforementioned plaintiff has sustained damages in the sum of $5,000 with costs. The defense is a general denial.

While the jury in No. 41 was being drawn the grand jury came in and reported it had concluded its business. One indictment was reported by Winnie Finch, of Saugerties, the foreman, the indictment being against Patrick Rock of this city for robbery in the third degree for the taking of $3 from Floyd Long in Kingston on March 21. Rock was arraigned and pleaded not guilty. He said he would procure his own counsel and the case was sent to the next county court.

No. 43, was marked off the calendar as the venue was wrong, the action belong to Sullivan county instead of Ulster county.

The action of Luci Coli Donio against Patrick Gilchrist, tried in supreme court, Tuesday, was brought to recover $140 damages on a horse deal. The plaintiff claimed that the defendant exchanged horses with him and the horse he received from the defendant kicked and was unruly and he could not drive him and he sent said horse back, although he had given the defendant $40 a cash and his horse and wagon and harness to boot. Defendant claimed that the horse he gave the plaintiff was a young horse and plaintiff and his son did not know how to drive him and made him kick. Several witnesses were sworn on each side and then the case was submitted to the jury who, in a few minutes brought in a verdict of no cause of action. Ralph Burton Elwood Poughkeepsie with Henry Elton, as counsel, appeared for the plaintiff and ex-Mayor William D. Brinnier and his son, Grant M. Brinnier as counsel, appeared for the defendant.

FIVE BILLION DOLLAR INDEMNITY PART PAYMENT FOR WAR HORRORS

Longest Treaty Ever Written, With League of Nations Covenant as First Section, Limits German Army to 100,000 and Navy to 15,000 Men, Internationalizes Saar Basin and Dantzig---Provides Public Trial For Ex-Kaiser and Dismantling of Heligoland and Rhine Forts---Germans Nervous at Impressive Ceremony in Trianon Palace.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, May 7.—The treaty of peace between the twenty-seven allied and associated powers on the one hand and Germany on the other, was handed to the German plenipotentiaries at Versalles today.

It is the longest treaty ever drawn. It totals about 80,000 words, divided into 15 main sections and represents the combined product of over a thousand experts working continually through a series of commissions for the three and a half months since January 18th. The treaty is printed in parallel pages of English and French. It does not deal with questions affecting Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey, except in so far as binding Germany to accept any agreement reached with those formalities.

Following the preamble and deposition of powers comes the covenant of the League of Nations as the the first section of the treaty. The frontiers of Germany in Europe are defined in the second section; European political classes given in the third; next are the military, naval, and air terms, followed by a section on prisoners of war and military graves and a seventh on responsibilities. Reparations, financial terms, and economic terms are covered in sections eight to ten. Then comes the aeronautic section, ports, waterways and railways section, the labor covenant, the section on guarantees and the final clauses.

Germany, by the terms of the treaty, restores Alsace-Lorraine to France, accepts the internationalization of the Saar basin temporarily and of Dantzig permanently, agrees to territorial changes towards Belgium, and Denmark and in East Prussia, cedes most of upper Silesa to Poland, and renounces all territorial and political rights outside Europe, as to her own or her allies' territories, and especially to Morocco, Egypt, Siam, Liberia and Shantung. She also recognizes the total independence of German-Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

Conscription within her territories is abolished: all forts fifty kilometres east of the Rhine razed, and all importation, exportation and nearly all production of war material stopped. Allied occupation of parts of Germany will continue till reparation is made but will be reduced at the end of each of three-five-year periods, if Germany is fulfilling her obligations. Any violation by Germany of the conditons as to the zone 50 kilometres east of the Rhine, will be regarded as an act of war.

The German navy is reduced to six battleships, six light cruisers and twelve torpedo boats, without submarines, and a personnel of not over 15,000. All other vessels must be surrendered or destroyed. Germany is forbidden to build forts controlling the Baltic, must demolish Heligoland, open the Kiel canal to all nations, and surrender her fourteen submarine cables. She may have no military or naval air forces except one hundred unarmed seaplanes until October first to detect mines, and may manufacture aviation material for six months.

Germany accepts full responsibility for all damages caused to allied and associated governments and nations, agrees specifically to reimburse all civilian damages beginning with an initial payment of twenty billion marks, subsequent payments to be secured by bonds to be issued at the descretion of the reparation commission. Germany is to pay shipping damage on a ton-for-ton basis by cession of a large part of her merchant, coasting, and river fleets and by new construction.

And to devote her economic resources to the rebuilding of the devastated regions.

She agrees to return to the 1914 tariffs, without discrimination of any sort: to allow allied and associated nationals freedom of transit through her territories, and to accept highly detailed provisions as to pre-war debts, fair competition, internationalization of roads and rivers, and other economic and financial clauses. She also agrees to the trial of the ex-kaiser by an international high court for a supreme offense against international morality, and, of other nationals for violation of the laws and customs of war, Holland to be asked to extradite the former and Germany being responsible for delivering the latter.

The League of Nations is accepted by the allied and associated powers as operative and by Germany in principle but without membership. Similarly an international labor body is brought into being with a permanent office and an annual convention. A great number of international bodies of different kinds and for different purposes are created, some under the league of nations, some to execute the peace treaty. Among the former is the commission to govern the Saar basin till a plebiscite is held fifteen years hence; the high commissioner of Dantzig, which is created into a free city under the league, and various commissions for plebiscites in Malmedy, Schleswig and East Prussia. Among those to carry out the peace treaty are the reparations, military, naval, air, financial and economic commissions, the international high court and military tribunals to fix responsibilities, and a series of bodies for the control of international rivers.

Certain problems are left for solution between the allied and associated powers, notably details of the disposition of the German fleet and cables, the former German colonies, and the values paid in reparation. Certain other problems such as the laws of the air and the opium, arms and liquor traffic are either agreed to in detail or set for early international action.

Versailles May 7.—Germany plainly dominated everything and the contrast between them and the German leaders was noticeable. Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau, a tall, sharp featured man, was plainly nervous and kept his eyes upon the three great allied leaders—President Wilson, Premier Clemenceau and Premier Lloyd George.

Japs Conceal Emotion.

Premier Orlando, of Italy, and Baron Sonnino, the Italian foreign minister, watched the proceedings acutely. The Japanese members of the conference looked on with the usual imperturbality of the Orientals. Outside in the park, the scene was beautiful for spring had come in all its grandeur. The perfume of flowers was in the air and the birds were singing in the trees. Many of the trees were in blossom and some of the envoys stopped to admire their beauty before entering the palace. The ivy-entwined pillars of the sun parlor, in the rear of the conference room presented the softest possible scene to the eye. In fact the whole picture was one of supreme peace. But the peace delegates had little time for the beauties of nature. They quickly got down to stern business. A feature of the proceedings was the extreme nervousness of many of the envoys as they fidgeted about in their chairs.

No Sympathy For Huns.

It seemed to one as though they were framing a mental atmosphere to aid them in inflicting the proper punishment upon the Germans for their long reign of terror in Europe. One of the most impressive features of the whole proceeding was the absence of any feeling of sympathy for the Germans. The Germans had tried to conquer the world and had failed and today they were paying the price of their failure.

Not until the plenipotentiaries of the allied and associated powers had taken their seats at 3 o'clock sharp were the German convoys brought in. They were escorted by Colonel Henry, the French commissioner, assigned to that task. Then the Teutons were formally introduced. They were introduced with cold and formal diplomatic politeness. The Germans formally bowed and took their seats.

Clemenceau Addresses Germans.

Immediately behind the Germans was a small square table accommodating the German secretaries and interpreters. Behind this table was another with about 35 newspaper correspondents grouped around it. All of the great newspapers and news services of the world were represented here.

As soon as the delegates were seated and the formal introductions were over Premier Clemenceau arose and addressed the Germans in a preliminary speech. Count Von Brockdorf-Rantzau replied on behalf of the Teutons. The ceremonies were brief and formal. Cold courtesy marked the exchanges. It was pointed out as the proceedings got under way that the actual handing of the terms to the Germans did not make any change in the status of the situation.

The delegates from the allied and associated powers made the trip from Paris to Versailles by automobile, through approaches that were strongly guarded by troops. All cars that did not carry official flags were stopped by the soldiers.

Italians Participate.

The Italian delegates, who had rushed from Rome to Paris at the last minute, were present. The Germans, headed by Count Rantzau, filled the central portion of the picture and were seated at the foot of the tables in the dining room of the Trianon palace. The great room was flooded with light which streamed through the windows of the sun parlor in the rear. The arrangement of the tables followed the lines of the clock room at the Quai D'Orsay in Paris, where the treaty was communicated to the smaller powers yesterday. At the head of the table sat Premier Clemenceau. On his left was President Wilson and on his right Premier Lloyd George. All of the participants were in civilian attire save the generals, who wore the uniforms of the various armies. There was no special diplomatic dress.

German Envoys Nervous.

Facing the big three were the German envoys, who watched nervously through the 20 minutes program the men who held in their hands the future of the German nation. Ranging down the table from Premier Lloyd George came the delegations in the following order: French, including Marshal Foch, the British, Italians, Belgians, Brazilians, Portuguese and Servians.

On the opposite side of the table were the Americans, with Secretary Lansing sitting to the left of President Wilson, Canadians, Australians, South Africans, New Zealanders, Hindoos, Japanese, Roumanians, Poles and Czechoslovaks.

While rigid diplomatic procedure was followed in the arrangement, it was noticeable that the Germans were closest to the neighbors they had just recognized, the Czechoslovaks and the Serbs, the latter being the instruments through which Germany precipitated the war with the aid of Austria. A total of 93 delegates and secretaries were present. The figures about the table were striking in appearance.

Wilson Shows Strain.

President Wilson, ascetic as usual, showed in the deep lines of his face the tremendous strain he had been under. Premier Lloyd George peered out beneath his bushy brows and nervously twirled his shell rimmed glasses. His face was florid and he seemed to be less careworn than his companions.

Premier Clemenceau, a formidable old man, showed strong features lined with innumerable political battles. He lived up to his nickname of "The Tiger" in his appearance and plainly indicated that he would defend France's interests to the uttermost. The Big Three

The Stroller Hears About Square Pegs in Round Holes—Many Are the Men Who are Stumbling Around in the Wrong Pair of Shoes.

"And many a good bookkeeper has been spoiled to make a darn poor jitney driver," muttered the customer, or words to that effect, as he entered the barber shop.

"What's on your mind now?" asked the busy barber pleasantly.

"Nothing but my hair," retorted the customer.

"And blame little of that," shot back the barber, "but what's the use of looking as though sawdust would melt in your mouth? This is too nice weather to be walking around with a grouch."

"I guess you are right at that," reluctantly agreed the customer, "but just the same it made me sore to miss that train for we have such 'elegant' train service on the West Shore that I have lost several hours while waiting for the next train."

"No wonder you did not have a good word for the jitney driver," said the barber, "for I suppose you waited until the last minute and then got there just as the train pulled out."

"That's right," nodded the customer, "but just the same there is such a thing as a square peg trying to fill a round hole."

"So I have been told ever since I was knee high to a cricket," replied the barber, "and experience has proven that the old saying is just as true today as the day it was first uttered."

"Take my own case for example," continued the barber. "I tried a lot of different jobs and wasted a number of years doing it until I finally became aware that as a stenographer or a bookkeeper or an office man I was no more of a success than I was packing a hundred pounds of coal on my back, but that as a barber I was filling the niche in the world I was intended for."

"Yes, sir," mused the barber, reflectively, "there are a lot of men stumbling about in the wrong pair of shoes."

"You said something," replied the customer, "there are a lot of misfits in this old world of ours."

"And all because they have not located the job they were intended for," replied the barber. He added, "there are just two classes in this world, the men who are born to be boss and the men who are born to be bossed."

Spring Fever —What Is It?

THREE o'clock in the afternoon—and absolutely no "pep." You call it spring fever, but is it?

When you are constipated waste matter remains in the intestines, decays, forms poisons which are absorbed into your blood and carried by it to every cell in your body. When your cells are thus poisoned, of course you have no "pep."

Pills, salts, mineral waters, castor oil, etc., merely force the bowels to act, and make constipation and self-poisoning a habit.

Nujol is entirely different from drugs as it does not force or irritate the bowels.

Nujol prevents stagnation by softening the food waste and encouraging the intestinal muscles to act naturally, thus removing the cause of constipation and self-poisoning. It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Nujol helps Nature establish easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world.

Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today and watch your "pep" come back.

Warning: Nujol is sold in sealed bottles bearing the Nujol Trade Mark. All druggists insist on Nujol. You may suffer from substitutes.

AVIATOR LEAVES HERE THURSDAY

Guest of John D. Schoonmaker While Here—Expected to Make Flight Over City Today, Weather Conditions Permitting.

Lieutenant E. E. Ballough of Toronto, Canada, the aviator, who made an unexpected landing on the golf links of the Twaalfskill Golf Club Tuesday evening, is the guest of John D. Schoonmaker while in Kingston.

This afternoon, weather conditions permitting, he expected to make a flight over Kingston in behalf of the local Liberty Loan, dropping literature from the sky on the city.

As told elsewhere he was forced to alight here that evening due to engine trouble. Mr. Schoonmaker seeing that he was a "stranger in a strange land" promptly invited him to become his guest while here, which invitation the aviator gladly accepted. He is flying from Toronto to Newark, N. J., and if his engine had worked properly would have reached Newark some time Tuesday.

Weather conditions permitting, Lieutenant Ballough will leave Kingston Thursday morning about 9 o'clock flying to Newark.

PLUMBERS WANT $5.50 PER DAY

Present Rate of Pay, Which Expires Soon, Is $4.40—Also Said They Want a 44 Hour Week With Saturday Half Holiday.

The present agreement between the Local Plumbers' Union and the master plumbers shortly expires, and it is said that the plumbers will ask for $5.50 a day. They also want a 44 hour week with a Saturday half holiday. From what can be learned they have taken the matter up with the master plumbers, or will shortly do so.

Last year the plumbers asked for an increase in wages and after considerable consultation between the plumbers and the masters plumbers the wage scale was fixed at $4.40 a day, which is the rate of wages now being paid. This is said to be much lower than either Poughkeepsie or Newburgh.

A little money saved each week will buy the notes you ought to seek.

NAMING THE WAR

It appears from General March's announcement in regard to the new Victory Medal to be issued by the United States and the Allied nations that the reverse of this medal is to bear the title, "The Great War for Civilization," and this seems to be accepted as the officially adopted name for the great struggle The other names hitherto most frequently employed by writers and speakers are the World War and the Great War. The European War has been suggested on the ground that this is the first time Americans ever fought in Europe. Our War Department is said to have made an effort to have it called the War of 1918, which is surprising, inasmuch as it began in 1914 and even American participation began in 1917. The Great War for Civilization is accurate enough, but it is long and cumbersome, and its length alone seems likely to prevent it from coming into general use.

The obvious difficulty is to be accurately descriptive and at the same time brief and picturesque. We cannot call it from the names of the nations engaged, as in the case of the Spanish-American War, because the nations engaged were too many. Nor can we follow the plan in the naming of the Thirty Years' War because the "Four and a Half Years' War" would convey no idea of its magnitude The Great War is no bad title for the greatest of wars. The same may be said of the World War, for many more nations and a far larger part of the planet were involved in this war than in another. These two titles, which are also good because they are short, are likely to continue much in use. What the historians of the future will call the mighty struggle remains to be seen. Meanwhile it seems safe to conclude that the Great War for Civilization will not be widely employed.

RETURN TO PRIVATE CONTROL

Both the war experiment of government control of public utilities and government enterprises for war production appear to be very near the end of their term. The ocean cable properties have been ordered returned to their owners and the restoration of the telephone and telegraph systems to private hands is promised as soon as Congress can pass the necessary legislation. At the same time it is announced that steps are being taken by the government to dispossess itself as soon as practicable of the great shipbuilding enterprise at Hog Island, which would have been of immense service if the war had gone on with continuing destruction by U-boats but was completed too late for its production to influence the decisive issue on November 11th last. As for the railroads, the President put it up to Congress last December to decide whether Government control should continue, or whether there should be a modified government supervision, or whether the railroads should be returned to their owners, to be managed under the old system.

Congress did not take the matter up prior to adjournment, but this will probably be done at the next session, and no doubt the whole question of government control will eventually receive careful consideration. Though the open minded observer will admit that there could be no fair test of the general principle of government control in these hasty war experiments, without previous preparation or careful study, it must be said that the results as a whole have not pleased the majority of the people and that a widespread sentiment in favor of a general return to private control is plainly indicated.

Kingston National Bank Automatically Assumes That Status Saturday Without Interruption of Business.

Saturday the Kingston National Bank, which by resolution of two-thirds of the stockholders on April 1st voted to convert the National Bank into a State Bank and to convert the State Bank into a Trust Company, on May 10th, will automatically become an incorporated trust company. By the method pursued the change or conversing from a national bank to a state bank and ultimately to a trust company will not close the business of banking carried on under the National Bank Act nor destroy its identity or its corporative existence, but simply result in a corporation with the same officers and stockholders, same property, assets and banking business under different jurisdiction It will remain one and the same bank and go on doing business uninterruptedly.

ROTARY WAKES UP THE STUYVESANT

The weekly meeting of the Rotary Club was held at 8 o'clock this morning in the Stuyvesant dining room, it having been decided to have a breakfast instead of a luncheon. Of course, the first song was "How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning," although none of the Rotarians sang or acted as though they hated it at all. The breakfast was so good and the songs so numerous that there was no other program. Arrangements were made for a visit to the Poughkeepsie Club next Wednesday evening.

"If they can get up that much steam at breakfast, and on nothing but ice water and coffee, I wonder what they'd do by night if they had a few real drinks in," said Chris Winne, after "the tumult and the shouting died," and the Rotarians had departed.

A message to farmers about "Satisfaction guaranteed"

WE say "satisfaction guaranteed" a good deal. We would like to have you know what we mean by that phrase. Satisfaction in clothes means to us exactly what it means to you; you decide it.

All merchandise made by human hands and sold at any store may have defects; none of us are infallible; we can't possibly guarantee merchandise, except that we can guarantee that

Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes are all-wool and stylish

But what we can guarantee is that the clothes will satisfy, and if for any reason they don't—we'll make good.

Naturally we have to be pretty careful about the goods we sell, or we couldn't keep on guaranteeing satisfaction on our goods. If anything doesn't satisfy you, we give your money back as much for your sake as for ours; we don't care to keep any money we don't give value for.

"Satisfaction guaranteed" is simply value-giving, and we believe you'll like the spirit at this store.

GATES HALF-SOLE TIRES

REGISTERED U. S. PAT. OFF.

Cost only 1/2 As Much

MR. MOTORIST:

If you knew you could get 5,000 to 15,000 more miles from the worn tires you have on your car, and,—

If you also knew you could obtain complete freedom from punctures, and greatly increase the beauty of your tire equipment, and,—

If also knew you could do this at one-half the cost of new tires,—

You would be interested, wouldn't you?

Well, Sir, you can do this by using GATES HALF-SOLE TIRES. This is not guess work. It has been proved by more than 350,000 business men like yourself who have used these practical money-savers during the past two years.

Gates Half-Sole Tires are not retreads or sewed-on treads or other makeshifts. They fit completely over your worn casings, transforming them into the most beautiful, brand-new oversize tire you ever saw.

They are guaranteed the same as the tires now on your car, only more;—they are guaranteed puncture-proof. And back of the guarantee is the manufacturer, The Gates Rubber Company, Denver's greatest industry.

Most important of all, Gates Half-Sole Tires COST ONLY ONE-HALF AS MUCH AS OTHER TIRES.

You owe it to yourself not to throw away another worn tire or purchase another one until you have investigated.

Come in and let us show you this wonderful proposition which is revolutionizing the tire business.

We are open for business and will gladly show you our plant. See how it is done.

LOVE LECTURE FOR CHANCE OF SLEEP

Even in the Process of Being Mustered Out Lectures Pursue the Long-Suffering Soldier—Final Scenes in Camp Described by Corporal Schryver.

Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass.—In last letter I mentioned we were in new barracks. When we arrived and cleaned house orders were that none would leave barracks until further notice, which came at 4:30 p. m. when we formed ranks and marched to a place selected as a good background for the picture to be taken of our entire company. In this picture appears two of our former comrades who were invalided home in April, 1918, for serious injuries received during the March drive—Sullivan, who lost a leg and Lewis partially riddled. Both had grown stout but yet retain a light color—different from our brown faces.

From that period until now (8 a. m.) we have had much bunk fatigue, good food and rest, with our schedule all shot to blazes. We did not get medical and physical exams yesterday as scheduled. That will occur at 9 or 9:15 a. m. today.

Yesterday afternoon and until 2:30 this morning I was one of the 7 who filled in the service records, discharge papers and then checked them up after, which we had to go through the routine necessary to get them in alphabetical order and rank so as to get our pay roll ready, as our discharge papers are made out for May 2nd.

Just saw some 4-stripers (two years of foreign service.) There were from the Harvard Medical Unit that was stationed at Etaples Hospital when we passed there August 21 1917, enroute to our work between Arras and Cambrai.

It is now 11 p. m. I am to be mustered out here, as we passed through our medical examination O. K.—Not a man being pulled out of the line of 141 men—during the 50 minute examination. Some of the younger boys "gassed" about it being a farce, etc., but your Uncle Dudley (That's me) has a very quiet thought that it was rigid enough to satisfy any one. Upon our return to barracks we signed our discharge papers and service records—for the big day—May 2nd—when we get a few greenbacks and "simoleons" (silver dollars)—and highball for our homes. The men of the third group of replacements that were sent to us in April, August and October, 1918, will be sent to their original camps, where they will receive similar exams before being mustered out.

Last evening a dance at South Boston for Cos. E and F was attended by many of the boys—while I—Well, I helped push a few around over the papers necessary for us to have before we leave here. And they say it was some dance. But one of these days——? Hol' on thar!

Many of the boys have fondly hoped for a leave before being mustered out, but their hopes appear far from being realized. The trip to Boston was cancelled, so I learned this morning, so when the banquet will occur is now the main topic. At 2 p. m. today every company of The Fourskin Fusileers (34th) falls in—not out—and does a little hike to a Y. M. C. A. building to listen to a lecture. Now, let me add right here, that we appreciate their kindness and thoughtfulness in providing a lecture for us. We love lectures. We do. We love them so much we can attend them—and "fortify" (sleep)—without annoyance to anyone.

There is something wrong here. Sergeant Lawrence J. Mannion, president of the Stove-Pipe Committee (elected June 29th, 1917, and re-elected unanimously at every meeting of the Board of Hot Air Directors) has failed to send out any real news lately through his former able assistants. Efforts to reach him in his private office, similar to the ones he formerly had—(in the mess kitchen) have disclosed the fact that he is not to be found there. That he is out—perhaps hunting up a few choice bits of news for the boys—so we wait with hopes that we will soon be rewarded. Larry also at present has the entire support of all the boys. At only one time while in France was his re-election in doubt and that was when Private James A. Holden (now at rest in France) nearly wrested the laurels from him in an exciting debate—to the edification and advice of each group. When Larry won it—he also secured the future votes of all Co E men. Why not?

Thursday, May 1st, 1919—None of our equipment has been turned in yet. No new clothes have as yet been issued, but the boys have been busily engaged in salvaging ones better than what they were wearing.

Soon the "Why-nots" (Co. E) will be known as "Forget-me-nots."

Turned in rifles and all ordnance goods at 2 p. m. then to an Employment Bureau, as per orders. (Also had ice cream for dinner.)

Friday, May 2nd, 1919—Turned in all extra goods at 9 a. m.—but we will not be mustered out until 4 p. m. or later, because of some mistake just discovered today.

Learned Headquarters was being paid and mustered out when mistake was discovered, resulting in the cancellation of our being mustered out, which will occur tomorrow.

Had we been mustered out today we would have to go home with old, dirty clothes, some with no rear parts attached. But John Morris of The Why Nots (Co. E) went to see the Red Cross people, who pulled the strings sufficiently for us to each get a new suit after our personnel officer had turned down the requisition slip of each company. All of which simply means we will put in one more night here.

Boston, Saturday morning, May 3, 1919, 12 noon—All were up early this morning and at 30 minute intervals formed ranks and marched to get our pay and discharge papers, after which we returned to our barracks for overcoats, rolises or barrack bags, and to shake hands with the old comrades before we bade them goodby. And about that part, it was not so easy as it appeared to be. There they were—lads we had grown to know and like—in all kinds of weather and positions. Lads that we will never see again, as they came to us from all parts of the world—as fine a bunch of lads as I would ever care to meet anywhere. And there was a deeper feeling to our handshakes and farewells than what appeared on the surface—to judge by our smiles and greetings. The group for Camp Custer and Grant leave there at 1 p. m. today for their long journey to those camps, and the other group for the 12 other camps leave this coming week. As is natural in such a case, notebooks and pencils were in evidence to take the names of many of the boys, after which eight of us hopped into an auto for the 35 or more miles to Boston, greatly enjoying the two hour ride for $2.00 through a beautiful country (more so now that we are home.) As the express I would take will not arrive in New York until 9 p. m. or later, and it would only result in keeping my folks up the larger part of the night, I intend to take in the banquet at the Copley Plaza Hotel, given by the employes of the N. Y. N. H. and H. R. R., to the members of Cos. E and F tonight. Then Thursday night another one will be held at the same place, and Friday a big regimental meet will be pulled off at Riverside Park, to be followed by a stag at some other hotel, which will be one big day and night for many? Then about May 10th, 11th or 12th the "Why-Nots" will hold one at some large hotel in New Haven and I hope to be able to attend that one. Certainly! Why not?

Tucked away in one pocket of my blouse is a paper we have long wondered would we ever get. In other words today is "The Day."

Regards to all,

KLONDYKE.

Found Something to Stick.

My boy is a restless sort. Once I gave him the third handkerchief for the day—two others he had lost. "Here, now," I said, "I hope you will not lose this one. How glad I will be when things stick to you." In the evening I served him with molasses. He stretched across the table in his usual restless way in search of something and turned over the molasses bowl. The molasses went all over the table and all over him. In trying to remove the molasses from his clothes, the boy observed: "Ma, at last something sticks to me!"—Chicago Tribune.

Didn't Want Anything Snappy.

"Now, here's a snappy suit," said the glib salesman, according to the Birmingham Age-Herald. "Just the thing for you, I should say." "Young man," replied the dignified person, "I don't want snappy clothes. There's nothing snappy in my makeup, and I hate the very word. Why, I even carry an open-faced watch so there won't be anything about me to snap."

You know the old saying—Don't let this happen to our American Ship of State.
Our Country has never stood higher in the eyes of the world than it does today. A place second to none among the Nations has come to us—a place in the sun calling upon us Americans to be teachers and exponents instead of followers.
We fought to make the World a decent place to live in, now we must pay to keep the World a decent place to live in—the eyes of all people are upon us. We must put this Victory Loan over in double quick time.

"Gets-It" Peels My Corns Off!

Any Corn or Callus Comes Off Peacefully, Painlessly. Never Fails.

It's almost a picnic to get rid of a corn or callus the "Gets-It" way. You spend 2 or 3 seconds putting on 2 or 3 drops of "Gets-It," about as simple as putting on your hat. "Gets-It" does away forever with "contraptions," "wrappy" plasters, greasy ointments that rub off, blood-letting knives, and scissors that snip into the "quick." "Gets-It" eases pain. Your "jumpy" corn shrinks, dies, loosens from the toe. You peel the corn painlessly from your toe in one complete piece. That's where the picnic comes in—you peel it off as you would a banana peel. Nothing else but "Gets-It" can do it. Get peaceful, common-sense "Gets-It."

Use "Gets-It," peel off corn this way.

CONGESTION OF SOLDIER CLAIMS

Congestion of Registered Applications Prevents Early Replies to Senders—Mailing 25,000 Bonus Checks Daily.

The postmaster at Washington reports that since the first of March an unprecedented volume of registered mail has been received for delivery in connection with claims for soldiers' and sailors' bonus, and receipts of mail equalling in three weeks what would normally be received in six months; that as this increase was unexpected and unprepared for, there was naturally a considerable congestion for some time; that the records of the matter are correspondingly voluminous, and for that reason it has been found impossible to answer the vast number of inquiries received, as it would involve the search of these records in each case, which is impracticable at the present time; that owing to the large quantity of mail being received by the zone financial office there will probably be some delay before acknowledgment is made by that office, although it is stated that the bonus checks are being mailed out at the rate of 25,000 a day, while the number of applications received daily average between 60,000 and 80,000.

Postmasters are therefore requested to inform the senders of registered letters containing applications for bonus that their failure to receive a reply is probably not due any loss of the letters by the postal service, but to the congestion which has existed at the Washington post office, and the congestion which, it is understood, still exists in the office of the zone finance officer; and the suggestion should be made to them that they communicate direct with the war department on the subject, rather than request that the article be traced by the postal service, unless they have received information from the war department indicating that the registered matter was not received by that department.

FREEMAN BRINGS BOYS TOGETHER

Private Bell Meets Many Local Men In Vicinity of La Rochelle,—All Anxious to Get Home.

Frank Bell of 117 Henry street has received the following letter from his son Private Ira C. Bell, in France, together with a poem showing how some of the boys feel about the delay in getting home.

A. P. O. 735.
March 16,1919.

Dear Father,

I received a letter today that you mailed March 3, and it makes it seem as though you were not very far away on account of getting mail in such a short time. Did mother, put one of my letters in the paper? One of the boys came in from duty this morning and he told me that some fellow came up to him and wanted to know if there was a fellow in his outfit by the name of Bell and he said yes, I know him well. He said tell him I live about three blocks from him at home and he said his mother sent him a paper and he saw one of my letters in it and he is coming up to see me this afternoon and I will write you later and tell you who he is. So now you see dad, that the good old Kingston Freeman, brings us boys together way over here.

Frank Crofk and I are still together and Fogerthy is here in the M. T. C., and Harry Sills is here in the fire company. You can find the boys from good old Kingston wherever you go, over here, and they are just as good soldiers as ever came across, from any of the states.

I was to Paris for a little trip and it sure was a nice place, but no place looks as good, to me, as the good old U. S. A.

I am still feeling fine and hoping to soon come home Love to all.

Your loving son.

I'll Come Back To You.

Silver threads among the black,
Darling, I am coming back,
Now that peace in Europe nears,
I'll be back in seven years,

I'll drop in on you some night,
With my whiskers long and white.
Yes, the war is over, dear,
And we're going home, I hear.

Home again with you once more,
Say in nineteen twenty four.
In November I thought I'd be
Sailing back across the sea,

Back where you sit and pine,
But, I'm stuck here for all the time.
You can hear the gang all curse,
War is hell, but peace is worse.

When the next war comes around,
In the front lines I'll be found.
I'll rush right into it pell mell,
Yes I will! Like hell—Like hell.

AVIATOR LANDED ON GOLF LINKS

Lieutenant Ballough of Toronto, Canada, Forced to Land Owing to Engine Trouble—Big Crowds Saw Him Fly Over City.

The big crowd which had gathered on the streets Monday afternoon watching for the appearance of the whippet tanks was given a treat that was not down on the program. Someone, happening to glance at the sky, saw a huge aeroplane flying overhead.

The aeroplane sailed directly over the central part of the city and was seen to dive toward the earth in the direction of the links of the Twaalfskill Golf Club, and soon a large crowd had assembled around the plane. The aviator was Lieutenant E. E. Ballough of Toronto, Canada, who is making a distance flight in the "Ace of Aces" contest, and was scheduled to reach Newark, N. J., on Tuesday.

Lieutenant Ballough had left Toronto Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, but engine trouble caused him to land at Watertown Tuesday. He had made repairs and was resuming his flight, expecting to make Newark that evening. Again he had engine trouble which forced him to land on the golf links.

His reception, however, can not be said to have been very joyous, for Caretaker Augustus Burger informed him that he would not be allowed to remain on the links, but would have to remove his plane elsewhere. Fortunately John D. Schoonmaker had seen the aeroplane from his home on West Chestnut street, and arrived on the scene in time to extend the hospitality of the golf club to Lieutenant Ballough, and assured him that his machine would be cared for during the night.

Lieutenant Ballough accepted the kind invitation, and was expected to resume his flight some time today. His machine is a Curtis biplane with a single propeller, and is painted brown.

VERILY LIVEN A VIRTUAL NECESSITY

Beware.

The frequent repetition of any facial expression causes permanent alterations in the expression, and these correspond with, and suggest to the beholder, the emotional state that has predominated, so that the man who is always laughing comes to look "a jolly soul," the thinker a thoughtful man, and the woman who worries begins to wear a worried look that persists.

Strike Balked Legislators.

A strike once brought a legislature to a standstill, no less than the house of representatives at Washington. The officers of the house had notified the stenographers that their pay would be cut ten cents a folio, and the shorthand writers immediately struck, forcing a suspension of the sitting until matters were amicably arranged.

Great Mothers; Great Sons.

One rarely ever hears from these the sons of great men. The son of a great man is handicapped. The world expects much of him and he is rarely able to fulfill the demand. Great leaders always come forward in the hour of need, but the sons of these great leaders, lacking the chance, cannot know of what stuff they are made. It is claimed that all great men have great mothers and that while the son develops along the mental lines of his mother the daughters take after the father. But, taking up the lines of activity where a man has achieved greatness and where equal opportunity is given the son, he fails to make good. In literature, art, science, music or invention the son falls short of the achievement of the father.—Chicago Daily News.

No Snowballs, No Lectures.

Fines having been imposed upon a number of students in a well-known college for snowballing in the college section, 125 men left the place in a body and picketed the neighborhood armed with sticks and handles. They refused to admit the students who preferred lectures to snowballing, and when one of the professors received a missile on the ear the police had to interfere.

O'RYAN TELLS OF DOUGHBOY DEEDS

Vivid First Hand Description of 27th Men's Valor Impressed Audience at High School.

Before a crowded auditorium in the High School last night Major General John F. O'Ryan, commander of the famous 27th division, delivered his lecture on the "Smashing of the Hindenburg Line" with a force that only a seasoned military man of war experience could have done. General O'Ryan was escorted from the residence of Major George F. Chandler on East Chestnut street to the auditorium by Company M and the men of the 27th division that reside in this city, and was ushered into the High School between the ranks of the uniformed men, all standing at attention. It was 8:25 o'clock before the formal proceedings of welcoming Major O'Ryan were over and he accepted all respect paid him with the military manner which has characterized him and his division since they were first called out to the Mexcan border almost three years ago.

General O'Ryan, from the time he was ordered to take his division to Spartanburg, S. C., until they took part in the final battle of the war, spoke with pride of the determination in their purpose of the 27th division. As he related with pride the discipline maintained by his "doughboys," as he termed them, he told of Field Marshal Haig after his inspection of the 107th infantry and the 52nd machine gun battalion, coming to him and stating that he had expected to see enthusiastic Americans but he had not expected to see seasoned troops such as the 27th division was composed of. General O'Ryan replied to Haig that he would cause no argument on that point as he well knew that they were seasoned and fit for anything thrust on them.

General O'Ryan with his impressive military alertness held his listeners spell bound when he traced the movements of his division as they fought so gallantly beside the French and English. His first trip to France in October of 1917 for the purpose of study of actual war fare resulted after witnessing three of the largest engagements in the decision that although no casualties were reported from bayonet wounds, he would instruct his division at Spartanburg in that art of handling the bayonet as in his opinion it was the key note of a method of instilling into his men the idea of aggressive fighting and advance. This he did when he returned to the United States and it proved a large factor in the smashing of the line that the Germans held against three attacks by the allies.

From time to time throughout the course of his lecture General O'Ryan smiled and spoke of his "doughboys" who were seated in the front under command of Lieut. Dittus and in his relating of the arduous fighting that they did he called for the praise that comes due to them as members of the 27th. Perhaps never before and never again will Kingstonians realize what those boys went through on the battle fields of Flanders and the Hindenburg line. No one could possibly be in a better position to tell of their experiences than is General O'Ryan who followed and directed their movements which proved so victorious in battle.

He laid the praise and honor where it was due, on the private soldiers and non-commissioned officers of the American army, on the French and English armies and last but not least the fighting Australians. He is a staunch admirer of the British and told of their sacrifices in equipping the American army, who had been rushed over without supplies. One incident of these sacrifices on the part of the British was told by the commander when they were on one of the British sectors and eight American divisions were equipped with British supplies. Immediately after they had been equipped they were withdrawn from the lines and, walking up to one of the British officers O'Ryan asked him what he thought of such a movement and the Briton answered, after removing his monocle, that it was a rather unlucky occurrence for them. Always taking things as a matter of fact and being content was the way General O'Ryan spoke in praise of their British allies.

With views and maps showing the manner of construction of the Hindenburg Line, General O'Ryan described the movements and attacks so in detail that it could be visualized by anyone with ease. One map that he displayed on the screen was the actual one used by the division in their attack on this line.

He impressed upon his audience that battle is not a place for cameras and so not to expect any photos of fighting and not to believe any genuine that they were shown. "A battlefield is a madhouse," said the general, in trying to give a vivid idea of the horrors of real action.

He told his audience that the doughboys were great souvenir gatherers and this he could explain with a conversation that he had one evening with a German prisoner at headquarters. He was questioning this German and asked him what they were fighting for and in reply the Hun captive said that he had been fighting for the "fatherland," the French were fighting for France, the British for their king but the Americans and Australians were fighting for souvenirs. The general in relating these amusing incidents made them interesting with his adopted form of "dialect" of the broken languages of our enemy and allies.

"The determination and nerve of the 27th division was maintained with vigor until their predicted victory came," said the general, again smiling at Lieut. Dittus and his men. "Even a wound failed to take away the smile of my doughboys," continued the general as he sadly told of the suffering from wounds of the men who fell at the front. One day when he visited a front line dressing station he inquired of one of the men who had been wounded who was the bravest man in his company on that day and the man looked up and pointed to a little Italian fellow lying on a cot covered with cloths up to his neck and evidently in a serious condition. The general went over to him and feelingly asked him how he felt and he looked up with a grateful glance and said in broken Italian, "I feel fine, General." "That is the spirit that was maintained by the American soldiers," declared the lecturer.

In concluding his lecture General O'Ryan spoke of those who had made the supreme sacrifice and showed screen pictures of some of the resting places of these brave boys. He expressed the opinion of the members of the division as being in favor of leaving these men at their honored places of rest in France that they be a reminder of the sacrifices that America made for France but also stated that in his opinion the parents should have their choice and consideration should be given it.

After his lecture General O'Ryan took the hands of all of the members of his divison, who were present and greeted them, for a time forgetful of all military dignity and with heart felt appreciation. Lieut. Dittus was the first member to be greeted.

General O'Ryan will lecture in Albany today.

Crystal Brown, the army camp singing director, who was expected to lead the singing at the lecture, sent a telegram to Mayor Canfield saying that he would not be present because of an attack of laryngitis.

WHIPPET TANKS ARRIVED LATE

The Two Tanks Travel on Two Army Auto Trucks—Unable to Give Demonstration as Rain Kept Crowds Away—Left for Kerhonkson.

The whipped tanks reached Kingston Tuesday evening about 8:30 o'clock, coming from New Paltz. They were loaded on two big army trucks, and were parked for the night on Pine Grove avenue, near the Y. M. C. A., while the crew of eight men in charge of Lieutenant Kinberley, spent the night at the Stuyvesant Hotel.

News of the expected arrival of the tanks had spread rapidly that day and long before 5:30 o'clock, the time they were expected to arrive, the streets in the vicinity of the city hall and the Y. M. C. A. were lined with people waiting to catch a view of the tanks.

The tanks are ugly looking brutes, each weighing eight tons and carrying one gun. When going into action it takes two men to man them. One drives the tank and the other handles the rapid fire gun. The interior is rather crowded for two men.

The tankss are painted in green and yellow as camouflage. They can attain a speed of ten miles on a good road bed, but when they go into action are generally run on the second speed, traveling between four and five miles an hour.

One tank was unloaded in the rear of the city hall and the other in the rear of the high school. The unloading was witnessed by an interested crowd who had gathered in spite of the rain storm.

Unfortunately for Kingston the weather was such that it was found impossible to secure a large enough attendance to warrant holding a demonstration. The tanks ran up and down Broadway in front of the city hall, however, and gave a somewhat vivid idea of how they looked in action.

The clutch on one of the tanks did not work well, and considerable time was spent by the crew in making repairs before reloading the tanks back onto the trucks. They left here later in the day for Kerhonkson.

Historic Versailles.

The great attraction of Versailles is its palace, and the history of this structure may be said to be the history of the town. Louis XIII built a hunting lodge here, afterwards extended it into a chateau. Louis XIV devoted enormous sums to its embellishment, or rather reconstruction, and Louis XV altered the arrangement of the interior. It was one of the usual residences of the court down to the revolution, which and its beginning here in the meeting of the states general in May, 1789. King Louis Philippe transformed the palace of Louis XIV into a museum to contain trophies of the victories of France. From the middle of September, 1870, till the conclusion of peace, ending the Franco-Prussian war in 1871, Versailles was the center of the operations of the Germans. It was there on January 18, 1871, that King William of Prussia was proclaimed German emperor.

Hearing Things.

A good story at the expense of one of the British army doctors is told by a Yorkshire lad. When his turn for attention came at the casualty clearing station the man of medicine made a stethoscope test, and at once manifested a tremendous measure of interest and alarm. After listening very carefully he pulled himself erect, gazed at the wounded warrior, and proceeded to a second round with his instrument, after which he declared, "Well, young man, I've sounded a good many people, but I've never heard anything like this before." Applying himself to a still further investigation of the mystery, he moved the instrument about, here and there and everywhere, but always with the same result. And finally he blew down the stethoscope, and out came—an earwig!

SERGEANT JONES'S BRAVERY CITED

Mrs. Shirley Jones, widow of Sergeant Herman E. Jones, who went to the front from Hudson, and was later killed while fighting around St. Juvin, France on October 14, has received a personal letter from Colonel Whitman of the 82d Division, and also an extract from General Orders, signed by Major General Duncan and Gordon Johnston, Chief of Staff, commending him for bravery in action.

This says:

"Sergeant Herman E. Jones, 1,899,689, Company K, 125th Infantry during the severe fighting around St. Juvin, France, October 14, 1918, Sergeant Jones voluntarily left a place of safety and went to the rescue of a wounded officer who was exposed to heavy fire. After dressing this officer's wounds and making him comfortable, Sergeant Jones was killed by enemy fire."

So Mr. Jones died a hero as all who knew him here, knew he would be when the hour came. It was not even necessary for him to go to war. He had a legal excuse, but refusing to avail himself of it, he went to the front, fought bravely and died like the man that he was. He was a brother of Mrs. George Burger of No. 611 Delaware avenue, this city.

CAPTAINS BOOTHS IN VICTORY WAY

Miss Dorothy Cohn Veteran of All the Liberty Loan Campaigns.

"A veteran of 1776" is the way Miss Dorothy Cohn, captain of the two Speakers' Stand booths in Victory Way, describes herself.

"Of course that's only a joke," she explains afterwards, "for I am really not a veteran at anything except this Liberty Loan work, but in that I really have some claim to be called a veteran, for I have worked during all five campaigns. In the previous loan drives I worked under Martin Vogel, assistant secretary of the U. S. Treasury, as a member of his selling committee, but this time the Metropolitan Canvass Committee was good enough to give me these two booths on my own responsibility."

Miss Cohn was too modest to say that the increased responsibility was a reward for the work she had done in previous campaigns.

Miss Cohn is indefatigable in inventing ways and means of arousing enthusiasm for the Victory Loan in the crowds that gather about her two booths. Each day she secures some prominent personage to solicit subscriptions at her two stations.

Washing Oysters.

"Old songs, old books, old friends"—and old methods of agitating oysters. Specialists of the bureau of chemistry, United States department of agriculture, have determined that oysters soak up a great deal more water and lose much more in nutrients when washed by the new air blast and mechanical device method than when washed by the old method, on a skimmer with a hose and paddle.

Executions Went On.

Some years ago the executioners of Canton struck against striking off any more heads unless they were paid an extra shilling for each head removed. The prisoners in the condemned cells were anxious that the strike should continue until the crack of doom, but the authorities climbed down and the executions went on as merrily as before.

Planting Fruits in North.

In the north and wherever the winter conditions are severe on plant life, either from temperatures, driving winds, or other causes, fruits are usually planted in the spring as early as the soil can be put in suitable condition. It is important that they be set out while the plants are dormant and before the buds have started.—Weekly News Letter.

VICTORY SPECIAL AT ELLENVILLE

The much heralded and eagerly awaited Victory Special which toured the state last year in the interest of victory is now finishing the job in the interest of thrift. The first stop in Ulster county for this year was at Ellenville this afternoon, and in spite of the rain the meeting was well attended and the demonstration train was very much appreciated by all present. Tomorrow the Victory Special stops at Accord and on Friday at High Falls.

Miss Lucile Brewer and other specialists of the department of home economics of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University will be on the car all the time it is here, to answer questions pertaining to home making and to explain the various exhibits on board the train. At 2 o'clock each day a demonstration lecture will be given on the uses of different foods and new methods of their preparation and preservation.

This Victory Special, the home demonstration train, is sent out by the department of home economics at Ithaca with the Ulster County Home Bureau co-operating. Miss Stuart, the Home Bureau manager, will be on the train each day it is in Ulster county to assist in explaining exhibits.

TESTIMONY IN MALPRACTICE CASE

According to the matter brought to the attention of the jury in the opening in the Jennie Ellsworth vs. Stern and another malpractice action in Supreme court today, the plaintiff was injured in an automobile accident in 1917, and Dr. Ross of Port Ewen one of the defendants in the suit for damages, was called and after giving her attention, took her to the City of Kingston Hospital where Dr. Stern was called and after an X-ray was taken of the injury the two doctors set the dislocation. She was in the hospital for some days, attended by Dr. Ross. According to plaintiff she was told she was all right and left the hospital, but instead of getting better, got worse, and finally went to Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie, and consulted Dr. Hill and another doctor. Photos were taken of the injury and it was found that instead of the dislocation being reset or reduced there was nothing of the kind. That the photos showed the bones lapped by reason of the joints having shrunk. It was impossible for the Vassar surgeons to remedy the matter. Plaintiff claims Drs. Ross and Stern did not call to their aid modern appliances.

Attorney Keator in his opening for the defense made a general denial stating it would be shown that everything that was possible was done by the surgeons at the City of Kingston Hospital for Mrs. Ellsworth's injury. That it was a compound dislocation, the worst kind of one and from the time Dr. Ross was first called after the accident and after she had been taken to the hospital most careful attention had been given. That she had left the hospital against the advice of Dr. Ross and had the splint removed while away and her arm straightened. Whatever condition her arm is now was her own fault.

A number of surgeons of the County will be called by the defense to sustain their contention that there was no negligence in setting or reducing the compound dislocation and the Vassar Hospital surgeons to testify as to conditions as they found them.

The case was still on when the noon recess was taken.

ARGUE NEW YORK CITY'S APPEAL

From Order of Judge Hasbrouck Confirming Report of Commission Which Awarded DuPonts Damages For Ashokan Construction.

The appeal of the city of New York from an order of Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck confirming the report of commissioners of appraisal awarding the E. I. DuPont de Nemours Powder Company $114,000 damages, was argued Tuesday before the appellate division, third department, at the opening of the May term Tuesday at Albany. The award was $90,000 for indirect decrease in value of water power, real estate and machinery, and $24,000 for business damages because of the construction of the Ashokan reservoir by the city.

The company, known as the powder trust, bought the property of the Hudson River Wood Pulp Manufacturing Company in 1905 and the Eastern Dynamite Company in 1909, dismantled the mills and shipped the machinery to Maine for the purpose of eliminating competition, it was charged. The construction of the dam decreased the water power at Winchell's Falls, for which it claimed damages. The award was on the report of a majority of the commission comprised of George B. Wellington of Troy and John D. Schoonmaker. Commissioner Seaman Miller made a minority report to allow the company $17,500.

The Eastern Dynamite company was paid $4,500 for its damages before it sold to the trust and William McM. Speer, appearing for New York city, contended that the predecessors of the trust had suffered the damages. John G. Van Etten represented the company.

Another appeal argued was by New York city from an order of Justice Hasbrouck to have the proceeding declared a mistrial because of the conduct of the commissioners in the case. Mr. Speer alleged that the commissioners demanded $1,000 more compensation for their services than allowed in the order appointing them and because of the opposition of the city higher awards were made. Also that the commissioners did not keep a record of the rulings and statements of counsel and refused to do so.

Those present were: Dorothy Lang, Marie Costello, Katherine Fox, Virgina Uhl, Agnes Noonan, Agnes Brophy, Esther Huber, Elsie Emic, Katherine Boice, Julia Schuler, Donald Murphy, George Jordan, George Nettles, Emery Kelder, Wonie Kelder, Vincent Rice, Polly Rice, Clarence Uhl, Joseph Costello.

The many members present were entertained by an orchestra and refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed. Rev. Schmidtkonz, pastor of the church, presented Mr. Berger, in behalf of the society with a handsome fountain pen in recognition of his long and faithful services. The pastor also gave a short sketch of the society since its organization in 1881, and said that in his opinion the time had come when the German should no longer be used exclusively but that the business meetings should be conducted in English and German. Mr. Berger was much surprised and highly pleased and thanked the gathering in a few appropriate remarks.

Gen. O'Ryan Entertained.

Major George F. Chandler and Mrs. Chandler entertained Major General O'Ryan and a party of some thirty guests at a buffet supper at their charming home on East Chesnut street on Tuesday evening, previous to the address at the high school. The home was beautifully decorated with masses of roses. Among the out of town guests besides the guest of honor, were Captain John Warner of Troop K, New York State Police; Mrs. Charles M. Hall of Esopus, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Washburn of Saugerties. Following the supper, Company M, Captain Everett Fowler, and the Kingston members of the 27th Division, under Lieutenant Dittus, marched to the Chandler residence to meet Major General O'Ryan and escort him to the high school. The two military bodies stood at attention, to receive the salute of the major general, and then preceded him to the high school. As though carefully planned, just as the military body was ready to start up Broadway, one of the "baby" tanks came up the Broadway hill, forming a very war-like rear guard to the marching men and the major general in his automobile. At the high school the men formed an aisle through which the honored guest and his host passed into the auditorium. The members of Company M had invited the local members of the 27th to be their guests at the lecture and the entire military group, including members of the Ambulance Corps, occupied front seats at the meeting.

BRIDAL FLOWERS HERE AGAIN

That Orange Blossoms Are in the Market Is a Sure Harbinger of World Peace.

One interesting sign of the coming of peace has been the reappearance of real orange blossoms at weddings. During the war they were difficult to obtain, owing to the fact that they come as a rule from France. Nearly all the orange flowers which are used at smart marriages in London and Paris are grown in the sheltered valleys of the Alps Maritimes behind the Riviera.

Here there are orchards of orange trees scattered over the sunny slopes, and the local peasantry devote most of their time to growing the beautiful flowers. No attempt is made to get the fruit, seeing that the orange trees are solely cultivated for the sake of the glistening blooms.

A large part of the floral crop finds its way to the perfume factories of Grasse, but the choicest sprays are picked for the London and Paris markets. Orange flowers keep fresh for a considerable time, and they stand the journey to England very well, arriving in perfect condition.—London News.

Kangaroo Scored Knockout.

"Ned Kelly, the old buck kangaroo, has been having a fight with the boss stag of the axis deer herd," said Sergeant McGee of the San Francisco park police, "and it is the first time I ever heard of two herbivorous animals so widely different in species finding common ground for a quarrel.

"As a matter of fact, it was the axis deer that started the trouble. He was trying to show off before the does and started butting at poor old Ned Kelly who was peacefully loafing about with no thought for trouble. The first butt of the deer set Ned thinking, the second set him mad, the third—well, Ned Kelly just turned about and gave the axis deer one wallop under the stomach with his tail. You could hear the smack five blocks away, and it simply knocked the deer flat. It dropped as if it had been shot, while Ned Kelly just hopped away as happy as a bird."

Making Friends

By WALTER JOSEPH DELANEY

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Bart Morton had earned ten dollars a week as a clerk in a country store for five years, and then at twelve dollars for two years more. He was small of stature, but stout, had a broad, ever-smiling face, was snappy and jovial of speech and a general favorite. It was with a mighty resolution in mind that he handed in his resignation one day and went forthwith to the home of the winsome young lady to whom he had been engaged for six months.

"Katy," he stated in his quick, pertinent way, "I've given up my position and I start for Springfield in the morning."

"Oh, Bart!" gasped Katy, and felt as if the world were fading away from her.

"Twelve dollars a week won't support a wife and a home, so I've got to do better."

"But I am earning five dollars a week from my sewing," began Katy, but Bart waved his hand loftily and with definiteness.

"I wouldn't let you keep it up after we are married," he protested. "No, I've laid out my program, and it goes. See here, lovey, I know my failings, and they are many. They call me 'Banty' and think, around here, I'm all fuss and feathers. And I know my strong points. There are some."

"Yes, indeed!" cooed Katy gushingly.

"Only I am confined to too narrow a sphere to exercise them profitably."

"What are you going to do, Bart?"

"Become a traveling salesman. I've been studying 'the art of successful salesmanship.' I don't exactly fit in, but I've struck a keynote."

"And what is that, dear?"

"Individuality. The crack salesman, the book says, must have that, or fail. For instance, one man's stunt is an effective oratory. A second wins by dignity, another by persuasiveness. My stunt is individuality. I'm going to make a customer look twice at me when he sees me. I'm going to have people say 'Who is that?' when they pass me by on the street. One man will smile at my self-importance. Another will grin at my prim appearance, still another at my strutting pose. All right, I want them to. I plan to attract attention. I want them to notice me, remember me, and want to see me again. Then I'm a made man. Watch me work the miracle!"

Much more the confident Bart imparted to Katy and much more still to the head of the great city firm of Arnold & Co., wholesale dry goods, to whom he applied for a position. Their manager smiled drolly at the applicant for a position. Bart did not size up as to capability, in his estimation. This quaint, volatile specimen of confidence and assurance eyed him analytically.

"I'm guessing what you're thinking," observed Bart, "and you're dead wrong. You think I'm a joke. Very well, try me out and see. You give your salesmen a drawing account of fifty dollars a week. I've saved up something quite tidy and am able to finance myself. Give me a bunch of samples and a price list. I'll do the rest."

"There couldn't be a fairer arrangement," agreed the manager. "We've got a district open. The man who worked it has retired," and he took the time to give details as to the same, although in his secret mind he did not believe that this odd applicant, all froth and foam as he adjudged him, would make much of a success of it.

Bart went down to Springfield, a thriving inland city, the center of the territory he was to work. He took a room at the best hotel, he paid for a notice in the leading daily newspaper announcing his arrival, he disposed his sample case invitingly.

For a week he put in every hour of the day between eight and six dropping in on the trade. Each day a new waistcoat caught the public eye, a new hat ribbon, a new necktie. Those glaring vests were so loud that he was a point of prominence a block away. When he breezed into a store, proprietor, clerks and customers turned their heads to look at him. When Bart began his volatile, jumping-jack tactics, he held the eye and attention of the man he was talking to, the latter amused, interested, hypnotized. By the end of the week "Banty" Morton was a by-word in the town, and merchants began to look with gladness for the energetic, plausible salesman who told such famous stories, distributed such excellent cigars, dispensed such glowing details of trade conditions, and yet so far had not even lisped the word: "Buy!"

When Bart was all ready he sent out invitations to every possible future client in the town to attend "a trade banquet" at the town hotel. There was a call for a speech during the function and Bart gave his guests a trade talk that convinced them that now or never was the time to stock up, cheap! Then he gradly led the way to the room where his samples were on exhibition, and sent in an order to headquarters that fairly took away the breath of the manager of Arnold & Co.

Within six months Bart Morton had smiled, joked and strutted his way along five hundred miles. People talked of him, waited for his visits. His individuality became an institution, and when he went over the route with a charming, happy wife, an enthusiastic reception greeted them halfway down the state.

The Folding Fan in Japan.

It is said that the folding fan originated with the people of Japan, which is likely enough to be true. For we can scarcely imagine a dainty little kimonoed lady without her fan, can we?

HOW THE HUMBLE BUT NECESSARY NEEDLE IS MANUFACTURED.—Needles go through many operations in the course of their manufacture. They are first cut in suitable lengths from coils of steel wire. After a bath of such bits as have been cut out, they are placed in a furnace, then rolled until perfectly straight. Next, the needle-pointer takes up a dozen or so of the wires and rolls them between his thumb and finger, with their ends on a turning grindstone, first one and then the other being ground. The little steel bobbins are next fed into a machine, which flattens and gutters the heads, after which the eyes are punched. They are now complete needles, but rough and easily bent. Careful heating and sudden cooling give them the necessary temper, and nothing remains but to give them their final polish. On a coarse cloth needles are spread to the number of 40,000 or 50,000. Emery dust is spread over them, oil is sprinkled on, and soft soap daubed over the cloth, which rolled tightly, is thrown into a pot with others, where it rolls about for twelve hours or more. When taken from this friction bath the needles require only a rinsing in clean hot water, when they are ready to be sorted and packed.

GIFT THAT AVERTED STRIFE

How Doll, Presented to Papoose, Influenced Redskins to Return Peacefully to Reservation.

A band of Apache Indians were once induced to go back to their reservation by the gift of a doll to a papoose. The incident was as follows:

General Crook had been trying to put these Apaches back on the reserve, but could not catch them without killing them—an action that did not appeal to him. One day his forces captured a papoose and took her to the fort. She was quiet all day; but her black eyes watched everything. When night came the child broke down and sobbed.

The fort was in despair, until Major Burke, the general's aid-de-camp, borrowed from the adjutant's wife a doll that had been sent to her little girl the previous Christmas. When the young Apache understood that it was hers to keep her sobs ceased and she fell asleep. When morning came the doll was still clasped tightly in her arms. She played with it all day, and seemingly had given up all thought of ever getting back to the tribe.

Several days passed with no sign being made by the tribe, and finally, in despair the papoose, with the doll still in her possession, was sent back. When the child reached the tribe with the prize grasped in her chubby hands, it created a sensation among the Indians, and her mother later went to the post with it. She was received in a hospitable manner and kindly treated, and the effect of her visit was such that through her overtures were made, with the result that soon afterward the entire band moved back to the reserve.

How Father Handicaps Himself.

It has been noticed that in many cases of influenza the father succumbs to the disease, while the rest of the family gets well.

"I find that the father is less careful of his energy than the rest of the family," said a woman who has been doing a great deal of volunteer nursing since the epidemic. "In the first place, he thinks he has a bad cold and keeps on with his work. Then when it is absolutely necessary for him to stay at home he attends to the furnace and waits on the others who are sick. If every man would go to bed and stay there when he is first ill, it would be much better for his family, as he is the wage earner and the protector generally, and needs care that he may conserve his own energy for the purpose of fighting the disease, and getting well that he may take care of his family as long as they need him."

Why Pullmans Are Put Ahead.

A rearrangement of the order of the passenger coaches on through trains passing through Statesville has been noticed. The Pullmans are carried next to the engine with day coaches followed by the "jim crow" car and baggage and express cars. This reversed order has become a law with through trains, being adopted as a safety measure, that the steel cars may be next the engine. It has been observed in railway wrecks that steel cars in the rear of the train have caught and crushed lighter coaches next the engine, causing great loss of life and property. The carrying of the heavy steel cars next the engine is deemed safer.—Statesville (N. C.) Record.

Why Wooden Tie Must Go.

The increasing size and weight of rolling stock and the advancing cost of material and labor make it patent that a substitute must be found for the wooden tie. Both steel and concrete ties have been advocated for years, but the fact remains that they have not come into general use. Two steel and concrete ties of different types, showing the trend of inventors at present, are described and illustrated in Popular Mechanics Magazine. Each of these ties has been given tryouts on sections of different railways where the traffic is heavy.

In the British museum there is to be seen an almanac which is 1,200 years older than the Christian era; it dates back to the reign of the Egyptian king, Rameses the Great.

Relieves Deafness. Stops Head Noises

Nine out of ten cases of Deafness and Head Noises are caused by catarrhal mucus (matter) in the Eustachian Tube, which connects the nose and the ears. Leonard Ear Oil removes the mucus, opens up the tube and the other air passages of the head and the result is improved Hearing and relief from Head Noises. It is not put in the ears, but is "Rubbed in Back of Ears" and inserted in the nostrils, and "Common Sense Directions for Care of Hearing," which accompanies each bottle tells you exactly how to take care of your own case. Do not be misled by substitutes or imitations. The only genuine "EAR OIL" is A. O. Leonard Ear Oil. It is the original and has been on the market since 1907 and every year it has helped hundreds of people of their [illegible] Troubles. Stranger to the Western World.

The Asiatic zoological expedition sent into the South Chinese mountain province of Yunnan to investigate the range of animal life, succeeded in securing several fine specimens of the serow, which is a stranger to the western world. The serow is a mountain dweller, somewhat like the chamois, says the New York World. It is wary and fleet and takes a deep and seemingly impossible course among its native crags.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE TWO BUFFALOES.

"We were different from most of our family," said one of the buffaloes in the zoo, whose name was Billy.

"Yes," said another buffalo, "Billy and I were different from most buffaloes."

"You speak the truth, Benny, when you agree with me," said Billy.

"Tell us about yourselves," said the other buffaloes

"Well," said Billy, "I will let my partner speak. He is a better speaker than I am."

"Oh, nonsense," said Benny. "I do not mean to say that you speak nonsense, but in this case you are praising me entirely too much You are the one who should do the speaking. You're the speaker buffalo, if there is to be a speaker buffalo."

"And there is surely to be a speaker buffalo," said the other buffaloes, for they wanted to hear the story

"Well, you had better begin," said Billy.

"You had better begin" said Benny.

Both the buffaloes looked at each other and grinned. And the other buffaloes in the zoo said:

"There will be no speaking and there will be no story if one of you does not start."

"True," said Billy. "They're waiting for you, partner."

"True," agreed Benny. "And they're anxiously waiting to hear you start speaking," he added.

"Here, here," said one of the buffaloes, "this sort of thing can go on no longer. I will introduce the speakers of the evening and if you are both so modest I will call on you both to speak.

"We Used to Be Harnessed to a Wagon."

"Benny can give the first part of the speech and Billy the second part. That is fair enough."

Then all the buffaloes cheered and said:

"You've found a way out. Good for you!"

Billy and Benny grinned and smiled at each other.

"As long as we are both to speak it is all right," said Billy.

"Yes," said Benny, "I did not want to do all the speaking myself, for I knew you could do so much better"

"I know you could," said Billy, "but if we are both to speak they will at least have half of the time to listen to a good speech to make up for the half of the time when they have to listen to me."

"Exactly the way I feel about it," said Benny.

"Silence, partners," said the buffalo who had suggested that they both speak.

And the buffalo partners as well as the other buffaloes kept very still.

"We have with us this evening," began the buffalo, "two very fine speakers. They are both able to speak on any subject, but they are both so modest that they feel they aren't worth listening to on any subject!"

All the buffaloes grunted and said:

"Let us hear these modest speakers."

"We shall hear them," continued the buffalo. "First of all it gives me great pleasure to introduce to you Mr. Benny Buffalo, and when he is through speaking Mr. Billy Buffalo will take the floor—or the ground, to be more correct. Anyway, I mean that he will speak next and last. So let me present to you Mr. Benny Buffalo."

Mr. Benny Buffalo stood before the other buffaloes while they all cheered.

"My partner and myself, fellow buffaloes," he began, "belonged to such a nice master. We weren't as wild as most buffaloes. We were tame. We used to be harnessed to a wagon and over the countryside we would go.

"Yes, fellow buffaloes, we've lived lives much like horses. It is interesting to be a buffalo and yet to have lived a life like another creature. It is like little girls who are really little girls and yet who play boys' games and climb trees. They're nice and interesting little girls, I have heard. And now my partner will speak."

"Fellow buffaloes," said Billy Buffalo, "we not only acted as horses might, but we raced horses. Yes, we used to race the team of horses the neighbor of the master had. We certainly have had different lives from most before we came to the zoo."

And all the buffaloes agreed.

Natural gas conveyed in bamboo tubes was utilized in China years ago, and one of their writers mentions bamboo which repeated the sound of personal voices that were dead—a modern dictaphone or phonograph.

We've Learned a Lot.

By EARL BALDWIN THOMAS.

When through the bay the homing ships push on to their allotted place, while crowds at piers and ferry slips cheer madly each debarking face, this thought arises to my mind: "They've learned a lot, these stalwart youths, but when they land one thing they'll find—we, too, have mastered many truths."

From kindergarten kidlet up to financier and merchant prince—all those who drained war's flowing cup and dubbed the Kaiser's son a Quince—they'll find we all are keeping Lent forever on unneeded things since Thrift has taught us what it meant to clip the spending habit's wings A host have felt the gentle flower of Hope spring brightly in their breast since that fair day and pleasant hour they hocked the family silver chest to buy a Victory note or two Myself, I always had a hunch while strolling down some Giddy Way that if I shook the spender bunch I'd learn myself to save some day. So you and I (and every folk) who ramble down the countryside no longer think that Thrift's a joke since we have seen its better side!

THEN AND NOW.

By Earl Baldwin Thomas.

Oh, she would go a-singing on
Down greening country lanes,
A smile within her love-lit heart,
Toward where the sunset wanes;
But shadow held her joy apart,
Remembering their pains.

The woodlands wooed her out to them,
The birches, stately, fair,
The violets by the brook's cool edge,
The pleasant April air;
Oh, joy was singing in the breeze,
And sorrow everywhere.

But that was one long year ago,
A spring of ice and chill;
No more our girlies' hearts art torn
Since men have ceased to kill:
The violets smile to greet them back,
The woodlands' never still!
"Praise be!" I often say, to hear
Such gladness from their throats,
"This is the sort of joy that helps
"To sell our Victory Notes!"

SOMETIMES

"Do you think one can learn anything through correspondence?"

"I learned to love George that way."

One Thing More.

A pretty girl fluttered over to a neighbor's house Sunday last to borrow some writing paper. She had an important letter to write and mail, and she was out of stationery. About half an hour later she returned for an envelope, and a little later still came back for a stamp. "Well, I hope that's all she wants to borrow today," said the disgruntled neighbor woman as she slammed the door after the pretty girl. "She needs a little 'spit' to make the stamp adhere," said the neighbor woman's husband, "and she'll be over after that in a minute."—Arkansas Thomas Cat (Hot Springs, Ark.).

Insurance Against Tuberculosis.

Dr. F. J. Menard outlines in the Presse Medicale a plan for universal compulsory insurance against tuberculosis, the funds from which would serve for the fight against tuberculosis. His scheme is something like compulsory social insurance against sickness, but the tax or insurance fees imposed would include all classes of society, not merely the wage earners. He protests that the fight against tuberculosis should not be left to charity or private initiative.

Unduly Apprehensive.

"I hope they'll make some exceptions in taxing luxuries," remarked the plain person.

"Are you expecting to be hit?"

"I might be. One of the greatest luxuries I have of is sitting around the house in my shirt sleeves and reading the paper."

SUNDAY BALL LEFT UP IN AIR BY ALDERMEN

As Vote Was Taken On Mann's Resolution For City Fathers to Prepare Ordinance Favoring Sunday Baseball, a Motion to Adjourn Was Carried.

To have, or not to have, that is the question, but as far as Kingston is concerned the Sunday baseball question is still an unsolved problem, with indications that the common council is likely to adopt an ordinance legalizing it at the June session. This was brought out at the regular monthly session of the city fathers, held Tuesday evening at the city hall, which wound up in a blaze of excitement of which, as the novelist says, more anon

All of the aldermen were present with the exception of Alderman Preston There were a handful of citizens present at the session, due no doubt to the fact that Mayor Canfield had announced that he would veto any ordinance favoring Sunday baseball or movies if it was adopted without giving the public a chance to be heard.

Opposed to "Open Sunday."

Following the roll call City Clerk Doremus read communications from the Federated Parent-Teachers' Association, Wiltwyck Chapter, D A R, and the Women's Auxiliary of the Y M C A, opposing Sunday movies or the legalizing of Sunday baseball.

The only communication favoring the matter was one from the Central Trade and Labor Council, which favored Sunday baseball, but said nothing in regard to Sunday movies All were filed

And still all was peaceful and not a ripple of excitement ran through the council chamber.

If any reader is interested in the baseball question only he may skip the remainder until he comes to the sub-head, "And Now the Baseball Question" So glance your eye down the column till you hit the head

City Hall Vaults.

A claim filed by Mary F Larkin for $500 damages for alleged defective construction of a sewer was read, also a communication from the board of public works stating that they had considered the Larkin claim and would be glad to appoint a committee to meet with the committee of the common council when the claim was considered. The claim was referred to the auditing committee, the corporation counsel and the board of public works committee.

Alderman Schick stated that the building committee had received a number of bids for the construction of the vaults and other work in the city hall Judging from the bids received the work would cost in the neighborhood of 33 000 The report was referred to the ways and means committee

Just a Little Excitement.

City Treasurer Pardee requested permission to extend the period for collecting unpaid taxes an additional twenty days, and request was granted.

City Sealer William Moyle may attend the state convention of sealers of weights and measures to be held June 3 and 4 at Southampton, N. Y., if he pays his own expenses

Schick Wanted to Know.

City Clerk Doremus stated that under the state law the city sealer was required to attend and his expenses were to be paid by the city

Alderman Schick wanted to know if the state had authority to tell the common council what it must do if there had been no appropriation made for such a purpose

Also Schilp Wanted to Know.

'What would we benefit by it?" asked Alderman Schilp, we never even hear of his work."

"He has done good work, said Alderman Schick, turning to Alderman Schilp "better work than has ever been done before. He has visited every store in Kingston.'

While this little discussion was going on City Clerk Doremus was looking up his minutes of last year and for the information of the council stated that at that time Mr. Moyle had been given permission to attend and that his expenses be paid.

Alderman Kelly moved to lay the matter over until the June meeting, which was carried.

"If he goes he can pay his own expenses and then we can refund him the money if we feel like it, was the opinion of the council.

Health Board to Move.

The board of health sent in a communication asking for the use of the rooms of the city engineer across the hall from the board's present office. Under the plans for constructing rooms on the third floor of the city hall, one to be occupied by the city engineer's office the room on the first floor would be left vacant.

The request of the board was granted, and they will take possession as soon as the rooms are vacated and placed in shape for the board of health.

Salary Increases Granted.

At this point before the Sunday baseball question enters it might be well to state that Tuesday's session was the first attended by the aldermen when they are to be paid real money As the charter bill was signed by Governor Smith that morning it went into effect as soon as signed.

The only alderman, therefore, who will be docked his $5 is Alderman Preston, who was not present at the session. With that out of the way, to proceed is in order.

Alderman Mann introduced a resolution that the salary of Miss Jeanette Costello, clerk of the city court, be fixed at $1,000 a year, payable monthly Alderman Schilp seconded the resolution and it was unanimously adopted.

Alderman Kullmann offered a resolution that the salary of City Marshal Arthur Rice be fixed at $1,200 per year, payable monthly. This was seconded by Alderman Schilp, and adopted unanimously.

Ponckhockie Streets Need Repairs.

Alderman Kelly, of the Fifth ward, introduced a resolution that the board of public works repair the streets in Ponckhockie as they were badly in need of having something done with them. It was referred to the board of public works. The streets in that section of the city have had no work done on them in the last ten or fifteen years.

And Now the Baseball Question.

"Alderman Mann offers the following resolution," intoned City Clerk Doremus, and he read it. In brief it set forth that "as the majority of the people of Kingston favor Sunday baseball played between the hours of 2 and 7 p. m., that the common council prepare and pass such measures as are necessary to legalize the playing of baseball on Sunday between those hours."

"Move to Lay It Over."

"I move that the resolution be laid on the table," said Alderman Roosa, of the Second ward, and his motion was promptly seconded by Alderman Van Valkenburgh.

What Schick Believed.

Alderman Schick said that he did not see how the council could prepare such an ordinance, but that some alderman could He said that it was not likely that the entire board of aldermen favored Sunday baseball. He did not think it necessary to vote on the Roosa motion to lay on the table for no action could be taken at this meeting anyway.

Roosa Motion Lost.

The roll call was taken on the Roosa motion to lay over the Mann resolution and was lost by a vote of 7 to 4. Alderman Schick being excused from voting. Those voting to lay it over were Aldermen Roosa, Van Valkenburgh, Higgins and Hull, while those voting not to take such action were Aldermen Schilp, Kelly, Mann, Kirchner, Kullmann, Connelly and Purvis.

Connelly Did Not Understand It.

Alderman Connelly of the Eleventh ward said that he did not understand the Mann resolution and asked that it be read again before a vote was taken on it.

City Clerk Doremus reread the Mann resolution

Alderman Connelly thanked him, and then said that he believed it needed a prepared ordinance He was sorry that Alderman Mann had not drawn up and presented an ordinance as he would like to vote on it. He called attention to the fact that in the past the council had had its actions vetoed by passing and adopting similar papers as submitted by Alderman Mann, and that it was unwise to make a slip again. There was no use voting on the Mann resolution as it meant nothing

Connelly's Suggestion.

Alderman Connelly in closing suggested that Alderman Mann draw up an ordinance and submit it. It would take only a short time to prepare it and he could have it ready before the council adjourned.

Schick Didn't Think It Fair.

"I don't think it fair to the citizens of Kingston," said Alderman Schick of the Third ward as he secured the privilege of the floor "to draw up an ordinance and adopt it without a public hearing. The people should be given a chance to express the 'dictation of their minds.'"

What Schilp Thought.

"The people in favor of Sunday baseball won't come here" interrupted Alderman Schilp of the Fourth ward. He added 'we have adopted other ordinances and there was no public hearing held on them either."

Connelly Agreed.

"I agree with Alderman Schilp," said Alderman Connelly, "the governor put it up to the common council I don't think the common council would do anything wrong. He further said that he had received many letters and visits from people opposed to Sunday baseball and movies and he had asked them if they thought the council would not do what was right. As far as he was concerned, he was positive that the council would not do anything to "desecrate the Sabbath"

"We Represent the People."

"We are here to represent the people of our wards," said Alderman Roosa, taking a hand in the debate, "and we should take time about the matter and lay it over until next month. This is a matter the people are interested in."

"And then the baseball season would be about over," interrupted Alderman Kelly, of the Fifth ward.

Schick Favors Sunday Ball.

"I am not afraid to tell how I will vote on the matter," said Alderman Schick, of the Third, at this point. "I am in favor of Sunday baseball under certain restrictions. I know if we adopt an ordinance without giving the public a chance to be heard that it will be vetoed."

"It Won't Be the First, George."

"It won't be the first ordinance vetoed, George," remarked Alderman Schilp turning to Alderman Schick.

The other aldermen smiled in appreciation.

"Look at New York."

"Look at New York city," shouted Alderman Mann of the Sixth ward getting the floor. "Sunday 60,000 people visited the ball games. That showed what New York wanted."

While the alderman was orating the big bell in the city hall tower boomed "nine."

"What's the score, Ralph?" asked President Watts.

"Nine o'clock and it is time to go home," replied Ralph.

The Vote Taken.

At this point a vote was heard asking that the vote be taken on the Mann resolution. The vote was taken. Aldermen Schilp, Kelly, Mann, Kirchner, Kullman and Purvis voted in favor while Aldermen Roosa, Van Valkenburgh, Higgins and Hull voted against it.

Alderman Schick and Connelly begged to be excused from voting.

While Excitement Was High.

It was at this point that excitement began to run high and the aldermen in favor of the Mann resolution urged Alderman Schick and Connelly to register their votes.

While the aldermen were trying to induce Schick and Connelly to vote and while City Clerk Doremus was casting up the vote, Alderman Roosa caught the eye of President Watts and moved that the council adjourn.

Alderman Schilp promptly seconded it.

Alderman Roosa called for a roll call. The aldermen favoring the Mann resolution were busily talking about what steps should be taken when the roll was called.

Aldermen Roosa, Schick, Schilp, Kullmann, Van Valkenburgh, Higgins, Connelly and Hull voted in favor of adjourning, while Aldermen Kelly, Mann, Kirchner and Purvis voted "No."

The majority had it and the council adjourned leaving the Mann resolution high and dry in the air.

Sunday Ball Prospects.

Spectators at the council session left with the impression that while Sunday movies will not be allowed, Sunday ball will go through.

The vote on the Mann resolution, as taken by The Freeman reporter was 6 in favor and 4 against the adoption of Mann's resolution, with two aldermen not voting.

THE AMERICAN SPIRIT.

A short time ago the late Theodore Roosevelt said, "I'd like to think that, by what I have accomplished, without great gifts, I may be a source of encouragement to American boys"

That is the spirit America needs to carry the Victory Loan.

THE VICTORY FEELING.

You can talk about your Spring feeling and laugh at the sentiment it brings—But—Golly! when you see your first Spring lamb gaily gamboling in green with a Victory Note button on his ragged coat, it means something—that's what it does.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, May 7.—Warren K Van Vliet of Broadway went to Albany on business Tuesday.

Esopus Council, No. 42, Sons and Daughters of Liberty will meet this evening at 8 o'clock in their rooms in Spinneweber's Hall on Broadway

Mr. and Mrs Herbert DuBois and family have moved from the house of Mrs. Phoebe Ostrander on Green street to the home of Hezekiah Hotaling on Bayard street.

The party who lost a small package on this side of Sleightburgh ferry can have the same by applying at the Port Ewen post office and proving their property.

The official board of the Methodist Church will meet this evening in the chapel at 8 o'clock

Warren K. Van Vliet will open a fruit, vegetable and fish market in the building of David Parsell on Broadway Thursday, May 8th. Mr. Van Vliet will supply customers in the surrounding villages and anyone wishing anything in his line of goods can leave their orders at his home on Broadway and they will be promptly attended to. Mr. Van Vliet is well known in this village and vicinity and is worthy of your patronage.

It is hoped that the people of Port Ewen will become enthused over the Victory Loan, in fact the indications are pointing in that direction. This Victory Loan appeals to the people, in many ways, in the first place on the grounds of patriotism, and the desire that the people have to finish the peace made possible by our boys who fought for it, and as we have heard from two of them who came to this place to tell the people something of their suffering and the price which all American boys paid we are going to do our part in bringing them back, and then again it appeals to the people as a good investment, the best of any of the loans yet put over. The following are the district managers and canvassers of this place:—S. B. Van Wagenen, District Manager, Sleighisburgh; the Misses Helen and Pauline Van Wagenen and Mrs. Christopher Durr, canvassers, Alexander Secor, District Manager, north of Main street; Mrs. Charles Neice, Mrs. Harry Mabie, Mrs. Elsie Lowe Secor, Miss Cleon Elsworth, Mrs. Wava Fowler and Mrs. Mamie Lynn, canvassers, Sylvanus Van Aken, District Manager, west end of Salem street, beginning at Mrs. Meyers, Miss Clara Spinneweber, canvasser, Samuel P. Tinnie, District Manager, south of Main street, canvasser to be announced.

Esopus Council, No. 45, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, request all members to be present at the meeting this evening as business of importance will be discussed.

Young But Famous Flag.

The youngest among distinguished flags is that which was made in the old Flag house, Philadelphia, in 1913. Each of the stars in this notable flag was supplied by the governor of one of the States of the Union The flag was unfurled at the official opening of the Panama canal in 1913. It was released by President Woodrow Wilson, who pressed an electric button sending it to the breeze. At the same time "The Star-Spangled Banner" was sung in almost every town and city of the United States, sending a thrill of patriotic impulse over the nation.—J. A. Stewart, in Living Church.

Pessimism is Wrong.

It is wicked to go around with a face which indicates that life has been a disappointment of a glorious job.
